A PALATIAL PIGSTY.

The Pennsylvania legislature at the last session appropriated $6000 for a "sanitary pigsty" at the Danville state hospital for the insane. This palace for pigs, which is now in process of construction will be heated by steam, lighted by electricity, and the occupants will be served with "cooked food." They will not be allowed to wallow in the mire like common hogs, because there will be no mire. Every modern improvement for cleansing, ventilating and regulating the temperature will be provided. It will be a two-story building, but the purpose of the upper floor is not stated. Sleeping apartments and a bathroom would be in keeping with the place. Roast pig from the state "sanitary pigsty" will be a choice delicacy, but it may be expensive.

What is probably the highest restaurant in the world has been opened at the Eismeer station of the Jungfrau railway in Switzerland. It is 10,000 feet above sea level, close to the summit of the mountain. The food is not cooked by means of ordinary fuel but by electricity generated by the Lutschine waterfall, deep down in the valley below. With an expenditure of thirty kilowatts of electrical energy it is possible to prepare a five course dinner for a party of 100 persons in a short time. The guests are accommodated in a large hall hewn out of the solid rock and heated by electricity. The view from the huge windows comprises mountain scenery which for grandeur perhaps has no equal in the world.
